Request for Proposals for the Temporary or Permanent Acquisition of the Christopher Columbus Statue Formerly Located in Columbus Square in Providence.

After removal of the Christopher Columbus Statue in 2020, the Special Committee for the Review of Commemorative Works, convened by the Department of Art, Culture + Tourism recommended to the Board of Park Commissioners (BOPC) that the statue be permanently removed and sold, with the caveat that any proceeds be reinvested in Columbus Square or other parks located in the Elmwood neighborhood. At the BOPC meeting held in the fall of 2021, the park commissioners learned details of the committee’s process and recommendations. They also heard testimony from people representing various entities interested in obtaining or repurposing the statue but did not reach a decision on the recommendation of the committee. The matter was tabled for future discussion.

At the July 20, 2022 BOPC meeting, the board discussed the option to solicit ideas for the disposition of the statue via a Request for Proposals (RFP) to sell, transfer ownership of the statue, or enter into a long-term lease agreement. This offer is extended to any museum, historical society, educational organization, or other entities or individuals interested in acquiring the statue for relocation and placement.

The submissions must meet the Special Condition outlined in this RFP and detail where the organization or individual proposes to display the statue and what historical or other information will be included with the display.

The BOPC will review and consider all submissions and may invite applicants to interview before the Board in a meeting that will be open to the public. The Board of Park Commissioners will review all proposals and select one that is in the best interest of the City of Providence Parks Department and the communities it serves.

Submissions are accepted through September 26, 2022 at 2:00 PM.

Brief overview of Christopher Columbus Statue:

Columbus is a historic statue previously located in Columbus Square in the Elmwood neighborhood of Providence. It was removed by the Providence Parks Department and stored in 2020. Columbus is a bronze cast of a sterling silver statue which was created by Rhode Island’s Gorham Manufacturing Company for the 1892 Columbian Exposition in Chicago. The original silver statue was not meant for permanent exhibition, but rather as a demonstration of the skills of the Gorham Company, and was later melted down. The bronze cast was dedicated November 8, 1893 as a gift from the Elmwood Association to the City of Providence. The statue was created in 1893 by Frédéric Auguste Bartholdi and added to the National Register of Historic Places in 2001. In the fall of 2021, the Special Committee for the Review of Commemorative Works, convened by the Department of Art, Culture + Tourism, recommended to the Board of Park Commissioners that the statue be permanently removed and sold, with the caveat that any proceeds be reinvested in Columbus Square or other parks located in Elmwood.

Attached please find the Background on Christopher Columbus statue and recommendation of Special Committee.

The Councilman says that in 2013 the City re-paved Admiral St. and the monument for first class private Carlo LaFazia went missing. He says that the City re-dedicated and re-installed the monument in 2017, but that it was vandalized. The petitioners, supported by the Councilman, are requesting that the monument be moved across the street. Salvatore also notes that the monument serves not only to recognize LaFazia, but other servicemen who never made it back from WWI. He then invites Tom and Jerry O'Connor to share their uncle’s story.

Stephanie Fortunato shows photographs of Carlo LaFazia brought by the O'Connor brothers with the Committee members.
Jerry O’Connor says that his uncle’s remains were never recovered. He notes that the City dedicated LaFazia to his memory in 1933. LaFazia was honored in the Argonne cemetery in France in well. O’Connor notes that he came in 2012 to look at the Square, where the memorial had been reconstructed. He contacted Councilman Salvatore to re-dedicate the square in 2017, but that the memorial was in a turn section. O’Connor saw one day this past year that the stone had been knocked over and broken. He calls the stone Carlo LaFazia’s spiritual burial as there was no body recovered to bury him. O’Connor requests that one of the pictures he brought to the meeting be added to a new, larger monument in the new site to better identify the man with the stone marker, suggesting that it will be less likely to be vandalized if it has a connection to the person. He notes that he wants to thank Councilman Salvatore, and that, although he now lives in Seekonk, MA, he was born in the City, as was his uncle. O’Connor calls him a favorite Italian son. O’Connor asks that whatever is done in LaFazia square be of a size and amount of money to properly recognize Carlo LaFazia.

Chairman Ray Rickman asks that the City Archivist, Caleb Horton, provide an official briefing for the request for modification.

Caleb Horton notes LaFazia’s biography, noting that LaFazia was part of the Argonne Offensive during the 100 Days Offensive where more than 27,000 soldiers were killed in 1918, just a month before the Armistice. Horton notes that LaFazia was honored August 3, 1933 during the dedication of the square, and during the re-dedication November 11, 2017. Horton says he would like to have a ceremony during the re-dedication of a bigger and better monument, noting that he approves of having an etching on the stone to make a connection to the person being memorialized.

Chairman Rickman asks Jerry O’Connor if he is speaking on behalf of his siblings.

O’Connor says that he is speaking on behalf of the family.
Chairman Rickman invites additional questions of the Committee.

Becci Davis thanks O’Connor for sharing his story and says that she thinks it’s a wonderful idea to share the literal story of LaFazia at the site and that having language that pertains to Carlo’s life and sacrifice will ensure that they are remembered there and communicate the sacredness of the site.

April Brown thanks Mr. O’Connor for his story and asks about the location of the marker and where it will be moved.

Stephanie Fortunato explains that the marker will be moved from a traffic island to an area in front of businesses across the square into an empty tree well.

April Brown clarifies that the move would add depth and breadth so that people can understand it’s a monument as opposed to a marker.

Stephanie Fortunato says that it would, and that ACT has had conversations with the City Forester about repurposing the tree well and that ACT will reach out to the business owners to make sure they are in agreement about this change in space usage. Fortunato notes that the space would treated similarly to the marker discussed in the spring Committee meeting out of respect.

April Brown asks whether the City has anything that talks about WWI in terms of its memorials.

Stephanie Fortunato directs the question to Caleb Horton.

Caleb Horton says that the City does have the WWI Memorial on South Main Street.

Chairman Rickman asks Brown what she is thinking about.

April Brown says she is thinking about how to connect the LaFazia memorial to the other WWI memorial. She notes that it would be nice to have references because ignorance is connected to the destruction of the memorial.

Chairman Rickman says that there are a number of memorials in the middle of the street and that the public almost never pauses to reflect upon them. He notes that even if someone were across the street they could see the new memorial.
Mr. O'Connor says that he would like to go to the new proposed site and lay flags there. He notes that the site is not just representative of LaFazia's resting place, but stands for all veterans.

Chairman Rickman commends the Parks Department for cleaning up around the Korean War Veterans Memorial, suggesting that Mr. O'Connor should consider finding someone to adopt the LaFazia Square memorial.

Mr. O'Connor suggests connecting students at Veazie St. School to the Memorial.

Chairman Rickman suggests seeking the Councilman’s support for a connection.

Councilman Salvatore asks whether there is an opportunity to have a conversation with the Committee about public school education and a museum of commemorative works to mitigate vandalism and provide students with opportunities to learn about individuals being honored and remembered.

April Brown suggests talking about all of the memorials because the lack of connection between them makes them vulnerable to vandalism.

Caleo Horton says that LeFazia's story connects to the Italian immigration story, and the second-generation experience, as well as the immigrant experience in the neighborhood.

Chairman Rickman asks the City Archivist to address the specifics with the Director of ACT and calls for a motion.

April Brown makes a motion to modify the LeFazia Square marker per the request of the petitioner.

Dr. Erik Christiansen seconds Brown's motion.

Chairman Rickman calls for a vote.

The Special Committee votes unanimously in favor of the motion.

3 Request for Modification: Replica of sculpture by Theodora Alice Ruggles Kitson – “The Hiker” (1906)
Chairman Rickman invites the City Archivist to speak on the Hiker.

Caleb Horton gives the official briefing about “The Hiker.”

Dr. Erik Christiansen clarifies that a “Hiker” statue is also in the Burial Ground, suggesting that it may be the original.

Stephanie Fortunato says that the statue was originally designed for the University of Minnesota and that Gorham purchased the design and made about 50 copies. She says the statue conflates histories of four American imperial endeavors and that it embodies many characteristics of white supremacy culture in that it connects to the Spanish American War, the Cuban expedition, the Philippines and the Boxer Rebellion in China. The dates on it line up with the Filipino American War. It acknowledges the soldiers that participated in all of those expeditions.

The Chairman invites Mark Bhen Alan to present his modification to “The Hiker.”

Marc Bhen Alan introduces himself and his proposed modification, the addition of a traditional Filipino banig, or mat, to “The Hiker.” He says the mat will not obstruct or cover the statue, but honor it through caping/draping. Light rope will be used to affix the mat to the statue, with small weights at the bottom for security. The installation would take place throughout the month of June 2022. Alan says that insurance for the project is still pending. In explaining why he believes the modification should be permitted, the artist says that his project will showcase diverse voices; bring visibility to Filipino art, culture, and people; promote sustainability, recycling and upcycling in that the mat is entirely made of recycled materials; promote community building among Filipino immigrants and Diasporic populations in Rhode Island and beyond; and bring color to Kennedy Plaza.
Chairman Rickman recognizes Becci Davis.

Becci Davis asks whether the modification will be a temporary month-long modification.

Mark Bhen Alan says that it will be so.

Becci Davis asks whether Alan has a sense of how the materials will age over that span of time.

Mark Bhen Alan says the plastic will stay as it is for the whole month. It will not obstruct, destroy or make marks to the statue.

Becci Davis asks whether there is a plan to activate the site for performance, ritual, or ceremony that would celebrate and tell the story of what the modification means.

Mark Bhen Alan says that he plans to activate the statue on Filipino Independence Day, Saturday, June 12, 2022. He says he wants to create programming that connects archival research, readings, artist talks, and Filipino cultural dance, clothing, and food.

Becci Davis asks whether there is a plan to document the modification and the activation and ritual/ceremony.

Mark Bhen Alan says he plans to document all aspects of the work, including its creation, installation, and any celebrations. He also hopes to submit documentation to the City Archives.

Dr. Erik Christiansen commends the artist and asks the artist to provide context for the work for non-Filipino audiences.

Mark Bhen Alan says he hopes to have a textual display to introduce and explain the modification. He says he will introduce the work's context during any programming as well.

Dr. Erik Christiansen asks whether it is within the committee's purview to review textual materials.
Chairman Rickman suggests that it's not the job of the Committee, but that the City might take such a role.

Stephanie Fortunato reminds the Committee its role is solely to determine social and cultural merit, but that the City welcomes its members' contributions and thinking once a project develops.

April Brown says she is worried about contextualization and safety for the piece and asks the artist if there is a plan for curriculum, or a learning tool associated with the project.

Mark Bhen Alan says that there is an educational opportunity through programming with younger people, particularly through instruction in weaving.

Stephanie Fortunato says there will be an opportunity to connect to PVDFest 2022 to make sure there is a wide audience engaging with these themes. She says that the theme of education is coming up regularly, and that the Committee Advisory Group is also interested in creating platforms for a commemorative work inventory.

Mizah Salkind asks a question for Sylvia Soares regarding safety for the piece.

Stephanie clarifies that technical review will take place after review for social and cultural merit.

Becci Davis thanks the artist for their proposal, and suggests increasing the life of the modification in the site, or adding permanent interpretive text, or other documentation that persists beyond the temporary modification.

Chairman Rickman asks whether Mark Bhen Alan will consider creating a more permanent element.

Mark Bhen Alan would be amenable to creating a more permanent component to the work.

Chairman Rickman suggests connecting with Rhode Island Cuban associations to develop the work further. He also encourages the artist to create a didactic website that can help promote and archive the work.

Marc Bhen Alan says he is considering creating a website to share the display, process and activation, as well as using social media tools.

Chairman Rickman suggests connecting with book stores to ensure a contextual, historical framework for the modification.

Becci Davis makes a motion to approve the petitioner's proposed modification.

Dr. Erik Christiansen seconds the motion.

Chairman Rickman calls for a vote. The Committee votes unanimously in support of the motion.

4 Proposal for a New Commemorative Work: Edward Mitchell Bannister

Chairman Rickman asks the petitioner to introduce herself.

Nancy Goucher-Thomas introduces herself, and her accompaniment, professor Bob Dilworth, URI emeritus, and sculptor Gage Prentiss. She says her proposal has been submitted on behalf of the Providence Art Club and gives a brief history of the Club and its relationship to Edward Mitchell Bannister. Goucher-Thomas also acknowledges the importance of the artist's wife, Christiana Carteaux Bannister, to the social and cultural merit of the Art Club’s proposed commemorative work honoring Bannister. She notes that Bannister’s house, as well as Bannister Street, both serve to commemorate his legacy. Goucher-Thomas says that Bannister is significant as a founding member of the Art Club, and a founding board member of RISD, in addition to being a notable artist, philanthropist, and thinker. She reviews the support materials provided to the Committee, and notes that she has an additional letter of support from

Professor Bob Dilworth discusses the impact of Bannister on his work as a Black artist in Rhode Island over the last thirty years. He notes the importance of having a life-size sculpture of Bannister.

Gage Prentiss says he learned of Edward Bannister through learning about his wife, Christiana. He says that he sculpted a small bust of Bannister for the Art Club, and he sees the positive impact his presence has on the patrons and members there. The proposed sculpture would contribute to the identity and soul of the City of Providence. Prentiss notes that he is tired of seeing warriors and politicians put on a pedestal. He compares his vision for the Bannister memorial to the Ben Franklin memorial on a bronze bench in Philadelphia, suggesting that the design of the sculpture is meant to inspire a human connection to Bannister. Prentiss notes that he will try to put Christiana Carteaux Bannister’s portrait on the sketch book of the sculpture, and that he hopes the scene to be a modern one so that the sculpture is connected more substantially to the modern day.

Bob Dilworth adds that Bannister does not belong to the Art Club, the State of Rhode Island, or the US. He belongs to the world.

Prentiss notes that Bannister was Canadian.

Bob Dilworth says Bannister’s work doesn’t just speak to one place or person, but to the world.

Goucher-Thomas says that one of Bannister’s paintings valued between $50-70,000 went for over $277,000.

April Brown says she questioned why the City needs another memorial to Bannister, since he is memorialized several times over in Providence. She says she doesn’t have a question, but she wants to acknowledge that he’s already been recognized.

Dr. Erik Christiansen asks what memorials Brown is thinking of.

April Brown says she is thinking of Bannister House, and the Street.

Chairman Rickman says Bannister Street is named after Christiana Carteaux Bannister and Edward, but that few people who walk by the Street know who it is named for. He says that Bannister House was saved on the last day of Ruth Simmons’ tenure as President of Brown University, but barely. These commemorations are not visible enough to have a significant public impact. The Carteaux Bannister in the State House has not had a significant impact on the public either, in his estimation.

Rickman says 1 million people a year will see the proposed sculpture, and will thus out-equal any and everything that has been done for the Bannisters. He suggests that he will push for more copy on the work to be more inclusive of Carteaux Bannister.

Nancy Goucher-Thomas says the space that the sculpture will be in will be viewed by 100s of thousands if not millions of people who visit Rhode Island. She says she is unaware of any other artist who is honored this way. The text alongside will be significant in the contributions of both Bannisters to Providence, Rhode Island, and the world.

Bob Dilworth notes that there should be another separate commemorative work devoted to Carteaux Bannister.

Chairman Rickman notes that Washington Place will be renamed in honor of Nancy Elizabeth Prophet and that he is working to add Carteaux Bannister’s name to the marker in North Burial Ground. He says that Bannister, after his death, was acknowledged as a nationally renowned American artist.
Bob Dilworth reminds the Committee that there is a Bannister Gallery at Rhode Island College.

April Brown thanks the group for understanding her reservations.

Becci Davis acknowledges the importance of the memorial for the City of Providence and appreciates the work’s invitation to viewers to have personal connections with the monument through a physical, spatial relationship. She adds that the monument should have textual context and be a part of RISD’s education for its students as well.

Nancy Goucher-Thomas says it will be part of the curricular engagement of the College.

Bob Dilworth agrees with the need for education and suggests adding a barcode (QR code) to access information about the work.

Gage Prentiss asks whether there is a comprehensive list of commemorative works in Providence.

Stephanie Fortunato says she is glad to see a privately funded commission of Edward Bannister for public space for locals and visitors.

Chairman Rickman says he is thrilled it will be on City property, noting the Art Club funding, and insurance, and RISD on maintenance, and the City making the land available. There will be other organizations helping with the educational aspect. He notes that the sculpture will be looking at sites of memory related to his life, such as his gallery and his wife’s business across the Providence River.

Bob Dilworth encourages the group to include other institutions to ensure that all feel invested in the effort early on, and not after the face. He says RIC in particular is a critical partner to be connected.

Chairman Rickman asks if the Committee has any additional comments.
Becci Davis asks whether there are any other monuments on the site or proposed for the area that would be on view.

Chairman Rickman says RISD has talked about putting something on the side of Market Square, but it hasn’t happened.

Becci Davis says she would like to see that the Bannister effort not impede other efforts to contextualize the broader site.

Stephanie Fortunato says Market Square is a public park, so the Board of Parks Commissioners will be next to review the proposal and will determine the exact siting of the work. The project will have to go to the Art in City Life Commission after that. There may be a small plaque on the building.

Chairman Rickman says the plaque is on the front of Market Place facing North Main.

Stephanie Fortunato says that will be important to consider as the Parks Department considers where the final site might be.

Gage Prentiss says there may be a plaque facing Memorial Park but that the statue would be nowhere near that.

Stephanie Fortunato says that ACT should confirm this in an action step as a follow-up.

Chairman Rickman calls for a motion.

Dr. Erik Christiansen moves to accept the proposal as submitted to create the monument to Edward M. Bannister in Market Square.

April Brown seconds the motion.

Chairman Rickman calls for a vote. It is unanimously favorable to the motion.

5 ACT Report

Stephanie Fortunato reminds the Committee about action steps that have come out of the last meeting. The material about the Columbus statue has been forwarded to the Board of Parks Commissioners for their consideration. She says that the meeting has been rescheduled twice and they are supposed to meet in November at a date to be determined. ACT has no update on the marker approved to be moved. Fortunato invites the Committee to review the Monument Lab National Audit. She notes that the Advisory Group is thinking about the education piece.

Chairman Rickman calls for final comments.
